

Coffee Data Analysis

2.10 M TOTAL
REVENUE

643K NUMBER OF UNITS

319.49K AVERAGE
SALES

149K NUMBER OF
SALES

Sales are strongest in Spring and Morning periods, with Coffee products driving most revenue. However, opportunities exist in upselling to mid/high spenders and balancing product mix

Total Sales by Product Category

Insights:

- Coffee and Tea dominate revenue.
- Bakery contributes a strong third category.
- Specialty items (Branded, Packaged Chocolate, Flavours) underperform.

Recommendations:

- Focus on expanding coffee & tea offerings.
- Promote Bakery items as add-ons.
- Review underperforming products – either bundle them or replace with higher-demand items.

Sales by Store Location

Insights:

- Hell's Kitchen generates the highest revenue.
- Astoria and Manhattan are close in performance.
- Astoria lags behind by about 1,400–1,500 in revenue.

Recommendation:

- Run local promotions in Astoria to close the gap.
- Position Hell's Kitchen as a flagship store with premium products.

Sales by Time bracket and Season

Insights:

- Spring is the strongest season (1.12M). Winter and Summer are significantly lower.
- Morning is strongest, followed by Afternoon. Evenings are consistently weak.

Recommendations:

- Run special campaigns in Winter/Summer to balance seasonality and seasonal promotions.
- Maintain strong morning offerings
- Push afternoon specials

Monthly Revenue based on Quantity

Insights:

- Revenue shows a clear upward trend across months.
- Dropped in February (8,206) but strong recovery afterward.
- Peak in May (11,619), with June slightly lower but still strong.

Recommendations:

- Investigate what drove the May peak (seasonal demand, campaigns, promotions).
- Replicate successful strategies from May in weaker months.
- Prepare for sustained growth by ensuring supply chain & staffing can handle higher demand.

Sales by Time of Day and Day Of The Week

Insights:

- Mornings lead slightly, but Afternoon is competitive.
- Evening demand remains weakest.

Recommendations:

- Extend morning promotions to retain dominance.
- Boost Afternoon with loyalty rewards (e.g., buy 4 coffees, get 1 free).
- Create evening atmosphere events (live music, book nights, discounts).

Sales by Product Category & Quantity Bucket

Insights:

- Coffee drives the most revenue (R767K Low, R43K Mid, R10.8K High).
- Bakery also performs well (R246K).
- High spenders exist only in Coffee beans & Branded products.

Recommendations:

- Upsell mid-tier coffee products.
- Expand premium categories like Coffee beans and Branded (luxury products).
- Reduce underperforming categories (Loose Tea, Flavours).

Spender Segmentation

Insights:

- Analysis shows that most of our customers are focused on price, while the ones who spend more only do so on specific, high-end products.
-

Recommendations:

- Launch tiered loyalty program (rewards for higher spend).
- Introduce premium coffee subscription for enthusiasts.

Recommendations

Optimize the Product Portfolio

- Coffee and Bakery. These are your winners. Continue to innovate here with new blends, seasonal pastries, and limited-time.

Leverage Time-Based Promotions to Smooth Demand

- Launch "Afternoon Pick-Me-Up" Deals: (2 PM - 5 PM) Offer a discount on coffee-pastry combos or iced drinks to drive traffic during the slower afternoon

Leverage Time-Based Promotions to Smooth Demand

- Launch "Afternoon Pick-Me-Up" Deals: (2 PM - 5 PM) Offer a discount on coffee-pastry combos or iced drinks to drive traffic during the slower afternoon period.
- Introduce "Evening Wind-Down" Offers: (After 5 PM) Promote decaf options, herbal teas, and hot chocolate.
- Create Seasonal Campaigns: Develop strong iced beverage and cold brew programs for Spring/Summer.

Location-Specific Strategies

- Hell's Kitchen (Highest Revenue): Test premium, limited-edition products here first. The clientele may be more receptive to higher price points.
- Astoria & Lower Manhattan: Focus on loyalty and volume. Promotions like "9th coffee free" or "bring a friend" deals could resonate well to maintain their strong traffic.

